Remove the existing interface by gripping one side and pulling gently to remove it.

To remove the side straps, put your thumb on the head strap clip where the fabric meets the plastic next to the speaker on the inside of the strap.

Pull slightly outwards to remove.

Repeat on the other side. Remove the top strap from the center of the headset.

Starting with the top strap, thread it through the center at the top of your headset.

Take either side strap and clip it into place. Repeat on the other side.

Finally, clip your facial interface back into the headset to finish your head strap system assembly.

Position the headset on your face.

Adjust each side of the headset using the side straps until you get a snug, comfortable fit.

Ensuring the backstrap is low, adjust the top strap until you feel a slight lift off your face.

Your headset should feel secure, but not too tight.

Adjust the straps as needed for optimal fit.

Once you're finished adjusting and the headset is comfortably fitted on your head, it's time to play.

After gameplay, easily slip off the head strap thanks to its unique cap-fit design.
